Brigham Young's Manifesto. As a matter of general interest, we Subjoin the following extracts from a SPERCH delivered in great Salt Lake City by Brigham Young, in February last, Taken as a whole, it is a strange admixture of piety, philosophy, human-ity, and slang—a rare specimen of ora-tory, illustrative of the relation between no owner or owners, or keeper, of and the aubline and the ridiculous.

ALLEMAN, Mayor. bar here, that the Congress of the United States have passed laws giving us the privilege of including common law at our pleasure, and that too without any violation of the Constitution or general statutes. They have also given us the privilege to stop drunkenness, swearing and gambling, and to prevent horse racing, and to punish men'er robbing or hurting each other. The Constitution of the United States, and the whole fedoral government, in their act, have given eral government, in their act, have given the same.

ceral government, in their act, have given us this privilege.

Now, I will tell you one thing, that I am opposed to, and that this people are opposed to, it is to a man's coming here as an officer, with a piece of sheep's skin in his pocket having some great man's name to it, and beginning to set up his rules of discipline for the people, and saying: "I am a gentleman, I am a high-minded gentleman; can you tell me where I can find a woman to sleep with me to night?" and setting up gambling shops, and drinking, and carousing, and stirring up strife, and hatching up law-suits; hunting out disaffected spirits, and then lecturing the people on morality, wishing them to become on morality, wishing them to become like other communities, and saying to Mrs. Such-a-one, or Mrs. Such-a-one, Passed, April 25, 1855. "won't you ride with me-won't you take a sleigh ride to night with me?
I am a high-minded gentleman." A prudent father or husband says, "come prudent father or husband says, "come here, this is your place; you have no business with strangers." What is the to such man, and am after them with the barbed arrows of the Almighe. To what extent? Let them intrude upon the classity of my family, and, so help Mormons are all hostile to the government," and they may cry it until they are in bell. Corrupt men cannot walk these streets with impunity, and if that is alienism to the government, amen to it. The Constitution of the United States we sustain all the day long, and it will sustain and shield us, while the men who say we are allens, and cry out " Mormon disturbance," will go to hell.— There have been officers here who were not fit to live in our midst, and they ran home and raised the cry " Mormon disturbacces," " Mormon rebellion," "Mormon war," and " treasoners;" but

When a man professes to be my friend, and the friend of this people, he will take my council, instead of stirring up strife, and practising iniquity. I dislike the wilfully correspt, and by and by I will come out thunder-like, as I have doos upon others when practising individual when he made his glorious speech, and insulted this people from the highest to the lowest, I chastised him, and he ran off and reported as my saying those which I did not say. It was told him while he was on the
